Class 12A Comments:

Eclectic range of varieties! Top gold is a belter (just add seafood), edging out a great aromatic thirst quencher. Best of the rest are crisp and savoury, keeping phenolics and bitterness in balance.

Mixed bag. lack of freshness the biggest issue. A nice older example. Good to see different approaches, but fruit characters are what we are looking for... We are judging varieties, not philosophies.

A class of highs and lows. Tannin and oak management hindered many wines, with others out of condition. Careful with the acid additions too. The best combined structure, oak influence and fresh fruit character.

Class 19 Comments:

Overall disappointing. Consensus being that PV has better potential as a blending component rather than a varietal wine ... lots power, but likelihood of of a 'second glass' tenuous due to bombastic nature of many wines.

Overall reasonably disappointing class.... too many wines out of condition with oxidation and VA creeping in. Freshest wines were much better, showing jubey, inky fruits. Too many wines smothered in oak not allowing fruit to shine through.

Class 28 Comments:

Nice to see a theme in the class. Consistency with some lovely red fruit and umami characters. Poorer wines were over extracted and smothered in oak. This class perhaps shows the evolution and vine maturity of Montepulciano in Australia. Best examples show intensity with balance and restraint.

Class 31C Comments:

Mixed bag. Drink-ability was the barometer here, lighter styles with freshness were more appreciated than the bigger/more worked wines. Many varieties still trying to find their identity.

Class 32 Comments:

It would seem that rose is still being made as a byproduct of other wines, rather than being made from grapes intended specifically for the style.

Mixed bag. best wines showed freshness and drinkability. Those with RS need to consider balance.
